respects de corps of - respect de corps, that has forming of fellowship which involves by excluding, whose binding force is not so much practical affection as contempt for and hatred of outsiders or at least the phrasical refer-faction of not resembling them, which develops not to much a collective conscience as a collective pride or allegiance as acting as a sole source of conduct and taking precedence of all other considerations including even those of truth and justice.
