

P.P.S. After consideration I wrote to Waddell telling him I would not become an applicant for the situation in his Department A.W.

Balmoral Terrace

26 July 1885

My dear Andrew
Your letter, conveying the dismal tidings of another hitch in the sale of the reversion, is to hand. This is an unlooked for affair, but it is no use bewailing it. I am sick and tired of the matter as I daresay you must be.
It is only the hope of repaying you so far as money can for your unflinching attention
- and the unwavering friendly kindness in this and other matters which gives me any heart at all. The formidable lion in the path now threatens.

to devour everything - I will write you ~~an~~ a business letter on the subject so soon as you send me a copy of Hobson's opinion -

With regard to Miss Wilton's administration I will write to Mrs. Wise in the terms suggested in your letter; and can only hope it will be productive of some good and enable this precious patten lawyer to do something.

Mrs. Webster preached last Sunday at the Church by request.
She leaves for England on the 3rd inst by the "Ellora" a fast sailing vessel - At a pause in the service an address was made by Waeter.

and seconded by the Secretary of the Church Committee for expressive of regard and good wishes - This was proposed and carried amid repeated bursts of applause of a very hearty character. Mrs Webster's address was devoted to a consideration of several aspects of the liberal faith, and was a good one, although she said she had put it together hurriedly - I conveyed your & Mrs L's regards to her after the service - It seems you have put your foot in it with regard to a short notice you promised to send to the Melbourne Review of Conway's farewell addresses - Turner says he kept the space open in the January number for it, and was disappointed in not receiving it.

Mesters Pally said if you were here she would have to scold you - Turner says if you send it for the next number, he will be glad to receive it.

I am in very good health but Walter's bile rose again directly he sighted Melbourne and he is in indifferent health.
He is going to write to you in a few days.

Kindly remember me to Mrs. C and and witness for my love to the Kinchins -

Brotherly regards to Burn, Dobbie & Gray and others not specified, and believe me dear Andrew Ever yours affectionately

G. W. Allen

P.S. This of course, is only a hurried letter, but I trust it will express me for a while
