

24/C340
2 Balmoral Terrace
St Vincent Place S.
S Melbourne.
28th Sept 1884

My dear Andrew,

I have been pasted up pretty well in your late election fight. It is needless to say I took a good deal of interest in the fray both because you were one of the candidates and because there were certain principles at issue, the sustentation of which I am no little concerned for - I am rejoiced to think that some impression is at last being made on that Old man of the Sea who has sat athwart my native land so long. There is a spirit being shown at last. It must not be permitted to languish.

I think you did quite right to emphasise those principles by opposing Dodds. Your speeches seem to be very good ones, Your utterances, and the enthusiasm of those who supported you will live beyond the Election day, and ~~make~~ make themselves felt in a not distant day. I am glad you regard your present defeat in the same way.

It is wise, and will be justified by the sequel - What a triumph a defeat of this character is contrasted with a victory which puts a J. G. Davies into the House!
Would that poor old Buller stood still on the tribune to wither these pines and ordures in armor, who egged on by the promptness of their own absurd vanity and the crafty body of selfishness and sordidness in the background which pulls their miserable puppet limbs, are thrust upon the country as do law makers - God save the mark!

I met Matt Summons in Melbourne. He came to see me at the office - I met him and his little wife several times - I went to one of Massey's lectures with them one night - "The Sea-kings" - I went another night with them to "Romeo & Juliet".
The youthful Benedict and his blushing bride appeared to have relished their trip to Victoria.
I had an interview with Gerald Massey after his lecture on Charles Lamb. Massey is a man with plenty of intellectual energy and a vein of humour.

He has the poetic head, and restless luminous dark eyes.
His physical health is bad.
He cannot face a cold climate because of his chest weakness.
He is a small man of a quick nervous temperament. As a lecturer he has been more popular here than Conway, both because he has a more distinct voice and his subjects are more interesting to the general public. I am favorably impressed with Massey as a lecturer, and also by his manner in social intercourse.
I think he would find favor with the circle. From the nature of my conversation with him I believe there is every probably that he will visit Tasmania - I did my best to make it attractive to him without of course hunting at any pecuniary inducement - I told him I thought his visit was not so much a business one as a health seeking one.

 He admitted this but said he should like to combine a little of the former with his travels - He is now in the interior of Victoria lecturing and travelling - He is not likely to leave Victoria for some time; and it is his intention on his return to Melbourne, to lecture on Spiritualism. I am in communication with Jerry the Bookseller his agent and will be acquainted with his movements and intentions, of which more anon.

Walter informs me that he has made up his mind to visit Yasmama at Omas, and that I am to come with him - You may therefore expect your two worthy chickens at the plumpudding period.

Please give my kindest regards to Mrs C & thanks for her last interesting letter.
Give some big kisses also to the Kuchins, and a double one to Johnny for his admirable letter. Tell him I'm going to pack up my clothes and come and see the Charade and the Xmas Tree and all the nice things.

I understand from Mrs. C's letter that you are pretty certain to visit Melbourne before Xmas and will bring Celtie with you. I hope she will keep you up to this intention.

I was at the Church last Sunday when Walters preached very well indeed on the text about worshipping God in the beauty of holiness.
I got hold of the ex Pucstess afterwards and came home in the train with her. I have nothing particular to report of our conversation. It may interest you to learn that they are going to start a social and literary union in connection with the congregation.

Mrs Webster is anxious that I should join this, and give some little assistance. I think I woud you I am a member of the Scots Literary Association, but I only visited the place once, when Miss Gill read her paper on Ritualism. To say the truth I have lost the taste for this now - not because I esteem literature less, but because when I next enter that arena it must be for money motives.

Affectionate regards to Gorg.
What a lot of lovers you have around you ~~now~~ now! What a lot of the blissful, borderland you must contemplate.
With best regards to Bobbie Hector Erny & Ivey, I am Ever yours affectionately
A. G. W. Thon