My dear Andrew,
I have seen T. Frodham & he tells me that Wiltan is quite recovered. I am rejoiced to see hear it & shall be glad to know when he is coming over so that I may be ready to receive him - I can't give him a room at my house owing to our

not being able to secure one with the necessary accommodations, but I'll get him cheap & comfortable lodgings & will see that he is in all respects made happy.
He can have a seat in my office until he gets word to Melbourne & in a word, leave him entirely to me & have no fear of the result.
I had intended to write a long letter

but have been & am so busy that I could not find time - I expect to hear from you by return.

Take care that he bring some credentials as to his legal capabilities, in case he has to enter a stranger's office - I hope, however, that he will soon be able to follow his true profession, - Literature
