& DICKSON.

Bank Place.

Melbourne 15 March 1878

Dear Andrew

I thought I should have heard from you before this but, as I have not, conclude you have been either ill or too busy to spare your poor friend a line - I hope it is not the former for your lucky fellows in Tasmania ought to be revelling in the glorious weather the departing summer was wont to bring, while we, poor wretches, have been roasted in - We have had very unpleasant weather since you left & the heat has been

At times ² intense. I can't make out your silence - you haernt even sent me a newspaper - I see your client has for the present escaped the 'first penalty of his crimes' but I am not indebted to you for learning that fact - If however you have been ill, old fellow, accept my warmest sympathy, if busy, my congratulations but in either event you have 'been rather 'rough' on me lately. I think I must have greatly displeased you during your stay here despite your protestations to the contrary.
Come, wake up, and send me a line - I have been very unwell myself lately I am under medical treatment, now - I think I am blasé; my medico says I am 'overworked & want

A change of air - He may be right - but his opinion will not bring me relief - I suppose I must struggle on to the end.
 I have had 2 letters from Moriarty since you left and must ~~be~~ tender both you & him my thanks for the interest you take in my behalf - I have answered Moriarty's first which was an offer to let me take the conduct of his business for a while, preparatory to starting in Tasmania.

 Of course I was obliged to decline it as holidays, like this, are ought of the question, & any move I make must be final and decisive - I told him fully my hopes & schemes. He replied that he thought I was right and that I had better remain where I was until I had some more definite plan of action -

Whiting sends his kind regards.
 We are without news from New South Wales but expect our friends down shortly - I notice by the Gazette of that Colony that three months residence is now required before admission—

I don't think I have any news—
We have been going on just the same.
You remember my matrimonial dilemma? I did nothing in the matter of the young lady in question (I mean the wrong one) ~~has come up~~ again from Geelong to day— I must meet my fate but dread the interview very much— Poor devil!

Please remember me very kindly to Mrs. Clark & Winton, and Ivey & tell the latter that I have not yet come across the party he mentioned in his last. I cannot make any promises as regards letter writing— I am so wearied with my exertions when I get home of an evening that I am incapable of any exertion I am no doubt unwell— I am trying to patch up things by taking sea side Sunday trips—How good bye old fellow with warmest wishes for your health & prosperity believe me your affectionate friend
W. Hill
