Dear Mr. Justice Clarke,

I am writing to express my gratitude for your offer contained in your letter of 5th Sept.

The space is limited in this Review, and as I understand there is only one copy from each article, in order to maintain its representational character, you will understand that I might be hindered in carrying out the ideas of the publication, and it is to pledge myself to a series of articles from the same year, in successive numbers of the Review. When the Review is other wise planned such a series will be more conveniently dealt with. Meanwhile if you would be willing to submit a couple of your papers, so that I might see if I can use them, it would be highly appreciated.

Thanking you for your offer, and also for your kind contribution, which I know have been received with approval.

Yours faithfully,

[Signature]