

JOHN B. MOORE
COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
NEW YORK

Feb. 22, 1902.

My Rankin:

Your kind letter of the 25th of October last was duly received, and I had the pleasure not long afterwards also to receive the copy which you were so good as to send me of your work on Australian Constitutional Law. The subject is interesting, and the same thing may be said of the book, for which I beg you to acceptmy thanks. Before I had completed the reading of it, my friend, Mr. Carman F. Randolph, of the New York bar, who has written among other things a recent volume on the Law and Policy of Annexation, and who is specially interested in constitutional questions, seeing your work on my desk, asked me to lend it to him, and he told me the other day that he intended to review it in connection with another work on the same subject. Should he carry out his design, in which I have endeavored to give him a certain encouragement, I think that his review will prove to be intelligent and appreciative.

I venture to send you a small volume, containing the record of a course which I conducted at the Naval War College last summer.

Believe me to be

Very sincerely

J. B. Moore.

To Mr. Justice Clark.
