[Address]

30th December 1825
The 9th Commission on the Potomac

This should have been referred for the report of the clerk who is the Secret Agent at George Town.

A letter was sent some time ago to the state on returning the papers.

That number of children there can be educated, without which the school in new gulf should be closed in the rest of winter.

Sir,

According to the request conveyed to me in your letter dated the 1st Instant. That I should report that number of persons can be accommodated for Divine Worship, and that number of children might be educated if a small school were established. I beg to state that thirty persons were present at Divine Worship when Doctor Moore joined friends service here today: and I doubt not, there will be a regular attendance of a like number on the Sabbath day hereafter.

These children ought to be educated if a school were established: and it may be, but there last are not certain.

Yours the honor to be,

John Brown
Your will. student. CLark.

John Clark.
Colonial Secretary's Office.
26th January, 1821.

Sir,

In acquainting you, with reference to your communications of the 17th instant, that the Lieutenant Governor has been pleased to advise on the joint recommendation of yourself and the late Mr. Brown, of the appointment of Mr. William Wilson, to the situation of Clerk to the.

George

John Clark, Esq.
George Loan, at a salary of Thirty Five Pounds per annum, I am further instructed to endeavour to your Excellency's hope, that you will personally bestow your attention to the welfare of the School, and satisfy yourself that it is conducted in a useful and creditable manner, so as to ensure the moral as well as the intellectual improvement of the children; and that you will, kindly endeavour to induce the Parents to send their children, and make the Masters some little contribution, which added to this his salary, may assure him a decent and respectable maintenance.

Yours truly,

John G. Scott, Esq.

Mr. Clark presents his compliments to the Colonel Secretary. In pursuance to the request contained in his note of the 31st December last relative to the appointment of a schoolmaster at this place, I beg to state for the information of His Excellency that there are twenty-five children fit for education. That £33 per annum might be an adequate salary for the schoolmaster, with a dining room.

The character of William Wilson is exemplary good...

Some repairs are necessary to be done at the old school house before it can be used, but they are not considerable — a new roof, a new range, & six partitions would do all that is wanted in a week.

Launceston, February 21, 1844

My dear Sir,

I have the pleasure to inform you of the appointment of a medical officer for your town, which you will have the kindness to return when you can accomodate with it: if labour is not associated with bodily exertion, the only inconvenience will be in running, and it will not be advisable that he should come to Launceston for a few days. You may have the kind assistance of Mr. Headlam, Medical Officer, as you are heartily interested in the subject, and communicate this with labour through you.

I am, dear Sir,
yours very faithfully,

[Signature]

John Clarke Esq.

If there are any medical duties to be performed not mentioned in the duties of the medical officer, you can write to me, and when they can return I can take you any thing you require.
