My dear Sir

I feel much obliged by your mentioning my observations respecting the selling of my Estate to Mr Bryant – my mind is not entirely made up on the subject but I will tell you mine on Thursday next –

I will send the wheat as you desire, but I do not think you will like the sample which I stated to you to be the terms on which I sold it – I will however send to Mr Wedge and if he has any, will not mind giving him a little more for it as I had much rather lose a trifle than put you to inconvenience –

My wife has been very unwell ever since she returned from your house – I fear we must give up all idea of ever leaving home again, she is too susceptible of cold and the least thing makes her ill –

I am dear Sir
Yours truly
W Wood

my kind respects to your family

[the following sentence written in LHS margin]
~~Mr Wedge says he will send you some of his for me~~
~~The price very little different – I shall gain it by~~

I open my letter to say that Mr Wedge will send you some for me – by which I shall lose little or nothing as I shall save my own bullocks which I much want to do –

He will send one load the remainder you shall have from me provided you think it good enough -

I will send you a bushel of English Oats if you will accept of them – I have plenty having by the Leakes [?] just arrived got the B from England –
