John Cochran's work on the effects of a bullet of fire

The wound was said to be fatal, but the man lived for several hours after being shot. He suffered greatly but eventually died. The doctor estimated that the bullet had passed through the abdomen. There was an extensive loss of blood and the man eventually succumbed to his injuries.

Mr. Jones, the local apothecary, was called to the scene. He administered medicines and tried to staunch the flow of blood. Despite his efforts, the man died soon after.

The uninjured man was taken to the hospital for observation.

The patient, a male, aged 70 years, presented with a history of intermittent abdominal pain associated with nausea and vomiting. The pain was described as colicky and exacerbated by meals, particularly fatty or spicy foods. The patient reported a 15-pound weight loss over the past six months. Physical examination revealed tenderness in the right upper quadrant of the abdomen. Laboratory tests showed elevated liver enzymes and a normal white blood cell count. Ultrasound imaging revealed a gallstone located in the common bile duct. The patient was scheduled for laparoscopic cholecystectomy. The surgery was uneventful, and the patient recovered well postoperatively.

I, [Name], your humble servant, have the honor to submit the following account of the case of Mr. [Name]...

Mr. [Name] entered into a house of business in the city of [City]... He was a healthy and vigorous man, aged about 45 years, and in perfect health until about a week before his illness... He was admitted to the hospital on the 20th day of [Month]... At first, he was treated with every attention, but as the symptoms of his illness became more severe, it was determined to subject him to a surgical operation...

On the 25th day of [Month], a surgical operation was performed on Mr. [Name]... The operation was performed under a general anesthetic... The patient tolerated the operation well, and recovered gradually... He was discharged from the hospital on the 30th day of [Month]... He was seen again on the 10th day of the following month, and was found to be in excellent health...

Patient: John Irish

There is a swelling of the throat on the left side. The patient is groaning at times and is very feverish. He has a cough and a slight coughing pulse. 100, rather full and irregular in motion.

To stop the cough:

Pills of calomel and opium at the first dose. 1/2 grain of opium at each dose.

To stop the swelling:

Pills of calomel and opium at the first dose. 1/2 grain of opium at each dose.

The pain was felt from the lower part of the left side of the throat at the upper part of the upper part of the face. It is a dull, drawn pain.

The patient is unable to lie on his back.

The pulse is very rapid and full. The patient is very hot and thirsty.

The patient was visited twice at 9 and 12 of December. He was very restless and delirious.

Mr. Hall's pulse. October

Pulsus -
Systole 7
Diastole 6-1/2
This means a strong and rapid pulse.

Margarine - The firm of Sherry & Co. sent over the 4000 lbs. of margarine they ordered. The weight of the pack was 100 lbs. The Continental people are getting very fond of this article. They hang it on the fire like bread and use it for a spread. They say it is the best thing they have in place of bread. They use it almost like bread and it keeps well.

Other notes on food and health:
- Walker, C. - Married a young lady.
- Dr.Symons - Visited the hospital.
- Mr. Hall - Improved in health.

Margarine to dissolve the stones.
