original Illustrations

Drawn & etched by the authoress -

These poems, which are the production of a very young authoress, have met with the deserved approbation of several of the first literary characters in Great Britain - They are published under the immediate patronage of Sam^l Rogers Esq^r, the celebrated author of the "Pleasures of Memory" - The illustrations, which were not only painted but engraved by the authoress, evince a degree of fictorial talent, which, taking all circumstances into consideration,

was perhaps never excelled.

When the ship, ^{that} brought the copies for sale in this Colony, the Book was on the ^{point} of publication. Its ^{appearance} ^{and} ^{superiority} was expected to be hailed by the reviewers as a work of extraordinary merit. ^{The} greater part of the poems were written before the authoress had completed her 17th year.

(The Publisher is particularly desirous that the above be advertised in the Hobart Trove paper.)
